DELTA Resources, Inc. Ranked on The Washington Post's Top Workplaces 2018

Washington, D.C. 6/25/2018: DELTA Resources, Inc. has been named a Top Workplace by The Washington Post for the fifth consecutive year. This recognition is based solely on employee feedback gathered through a third-party survey administered by Energage, LLC (formerly WorkplaceDynamics), a leading provider of technology-based employee engagement tools. The survey is conducted anonymously, and measures several aspects of workplace culture, including organizational alignment, effective execution, and meaningful connection with employees, just to name a few.

As a five-time recipient of this prestigious recognition, DELTA's CEO Maria Proestou is honored that DELTA's corporate culture and commitment are shared so strongly throughout the company, at every level. "We encourage a real sense of partnership between our employees and customers. Although it is easy to take for granted the work we do, each employee feels a strong commitment to the mission of delivering quality technical services and products. This shared sense that what we do ultimately enables the success of our service members and key decision makers is what drives our performance. Behind this, we've been able to cultivate an overwhelming sense of family, which makes us very willing and adept in working together to challenge ourselves to find innovative solutions for our customers and employee well-being, all the while going above and beyond in our delivery." said Proestou. While being recognized as a Top Workplace is greatly valued, Proestou also acknowledges that there is always opportunity for improvement at every level of the organization. Proestou observed, "Surveys such as this provide invaluable feedback and challenge us to continuously seek creative ways to enhance benefits, streamline business processes, and continue to attract top-notch employees."
